PREFACE

THE purpose of this work is to give a short sketch of the lineage of prominent persons in Canada to-day, with notes of anything of interest or importance regarding any ancestor, and especially to record, briefly but permanently, the achievements of those who, having served their country with distinction, have passed away, but whose names should not be dropped or their deeds forgotten, as is necessarily the case in reference works the scope of which is limited to the living.

It was intended at first to confine the work to families of early settlers; but it cannot be overlooked that Canada, though old in tradition, is yet, in its broad expanse, but a new country, whose citizenship is constantly being augmented by new comers from the older stock of the mother lands. The scope of the work, therefore, will include those who, however recent, are intentionally residents in Canada.

The work will portray the armorials of such of the families herein embraced as have coat-armour and are accustomed to use it, for the recognition and preservation of those cognizances borne by our forefathers tend to enhance the interest and value of family history.

The Heraldic Addenda contain the arms of notables connected with the events in Acadia, New France, and the two Canadas. Others will be added in subsequent sections.

The Provincial Armorials are in accordance with the designs and official descriptions furnished through the kindness of the several Secretaries of the Provinces.

It will be noticed that the shield armorials of the Dominion seem complicated (although composed only of the arms of the first four provinces to enter Confederation), yet are quite bare of those component parts which go to a complete achievement; i. e., crest, supporters, and motto. It is to be hoped that a shield will soon be adopted simpler to the eye, yet more comprehensively representative and having its proper complements.

The Editor is very much indebted to the advice and kind co-operation of the author of "Ontarian Families,"—Mr. E.M. Chadwick, K. C. of Toronto—to whose judgment and learning, especially in ecclesiastical heraldry, the writer has been glad to defer.

PUBLISHER'S NOTE.

THOSE who may be interested in honouring their forbears by recording briefly their lineage and acts, or who thus wish to preserve family facts for a generation yet too young to appreciate such matters, are invited to subscribe without delay. Additions to this work are continually in preparation and will be printed and forwarded to all subscribers as soon as sufficient material for a new section is collected. New subscribers will receive all sections issued to date, bound in one volume. Earlier subscribers will be sent the added sections, unbound or bound, as preferred, at cost. Illustrations of the subscribers' paternal or maternal arms and of his wife's family, will be given if furnished.

Additional copies of this book may be had by subscribers for presentation purposes at the rate of 25 cents per section. Minimum price: $1.75 post-paid.

Todd of Ottawa

TODD, ALPHEUS, C. M. C.; L. L. D. (†) (deceased), Librarian of Parliamentary Library, Ottawa. Born in London, England, 30 July, 1821. Came to Canada with parents when eleven years old. In 1834 at the age of thirteen he drew and published the first map of Toronto, then York. When fifteen years of age (1836) he entered the public service as Assistant to the Librarian of the Upper Canada Legislature at Toronto. Promoted to the full charge of the Parliamentary Library in 1856. Made Honorary Doctor of Laws by Queen's University 1881, and the same year C. M. G. Author of the following works: "Practice and Privileges of the Two Houses of Parliament" (1840), "Parliamentary Government in England" (1866-9), "Parliamentary Government in the Colonies" (1880). As a Constitutional authority, acknowledged throughout the British Empire, covering a long period of his life, and up to the time of his death, he was much consulted in and outside of Canada by Governors and Ministers, for his opinion on legislative difficulties, as they arose, in the different Colonies. To this fact the Parliamentary papers of Australasia amply testify.

Viscount Monck.

THE appointment of Lord Monck in 1861 to the office of Captain General and Governor in Chief of Canada was not favorably received by the Canadian press at the time, on the ground that he "was an inexperienced and unknown man, utterly unpracticed in any kind of statesmanlike work" to guide the Ship of State at the critical period of approaching Confederation. He was not long in office, however, when stirring events proved that he possessed all the ability necessary to meet the occasion. First came "The Trent affair," 1862, that raised bad blood in the country, and required wise and tactful administration. Then in 1864 a Ministerial crisis was brought about through parties being too evenly balanced in the House and the Government was defeated by two on a measure of vital importance to the country. On petition of the Ministry for dissolution, His Excellency, while expressing his willingness to abide by the advice of his ministers, set forth, in an able memorandum, the difficulties of the situation and advised a course that would avoid appealing to the electorate, where there seemed, through the excited condition of the country, but little chance of a satisfactory result. The wisdom of this advice the Ministry acknowledged and followed. Under his regime the plan of Confederation was worked out and accomplished in 1867, he becoming first Governor General; he relinquished office in 1868. (A. Hamlyn Todd.)

Arms: Gules, a chevron between three lions' heads, erased argent. Crest: A wyvern, wings, addorsed, sable. Supporters: Dexter, a wyvern wings addorsed, argent langued gules, holding over the dexter shoulder a laurel branch fructed proper; sinister, a lion argent langued gules holding over the sinister shoulder a laurel branch fructed proper. Motto: "Fortiter, fideliter, feliciter." Over the shield the coronet of a viscount and, surrounding the shield, the collar, and circlet, with pendant badge of a Knight Grand Cross of S. Michael and St. George.
